

Community Learning Exchange

UNIDOS Leader Sareth Garcia shares her story with the faculty from the UTRGV College of Science at the Community Learning Exchange on February 23.

Faculty from the College of Science met with the Office of Community Engagement for a workshop on Community Engaged Scholarship and Learning courses. During the workshop, faculty created syllabi for designated science learning courses with help from specially trained committee members.

Cristina Trejo, AVP Community Relations and Economic Development, said, “CEED Office is proud to facilitate and host such collaborations that bring together the community and University members, in hopes of achieving research based instruction and at the same time engaging the community through service.”
