As adopted by the young AMA in 1847, the Code drew significantly on the work of the English physician-philosopher Thomas Percival, whose 1803 code of medical ethics set standards of conduct relative to hospitals and other charities.

Behaviors that constitute mistreatment and other undo negative influence are unacceptable, and allegations and complaints of mistreatment will be addressed accordingly. Allegations will be fully investigated, and if they are found to be true, appropriate disciplinary action will be taken to address the unacceptable behavior.

In any case where a student experiences mistreatment from a faculty member resident, staff member or patient, the student should report the mistreatment. Reports of mistreatment or unprofessional conduct may be submitted by phone, via calling the Students Rights and Responsibilities Line 956-665-5375 (Edinburg), 956-882-5141 (Brownsville) or via the Student Mistreatment Form.

The development and nurturing of these attitudes is enhanced and, indeed, based on the presence of mutual respect between teacher and learner. Characteristics of this respect is the expectation that all participants in the educational program assume their responsibilities in a manner that enriches the quality of the learning process.
