

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE IN INTEGRATED HEALTH SCIENCES

The Bachelor of Science in Integrated Health Sciences (BSIHS) is a new, dynamic, 120-hour degree program which will prepare learners for a versatile career in the thriving health field through a comprehensive educational experience spanning the health and natural sciences.

3 CONCENTRATIONS

CLINICAL PROFESSIONS

designed for students who plan to apply to UTRGV undergraduate programs in Nursing, CLS, COMD, Nutritional Sciences, or Social Work

HEALTH SERVICES

designed for students who wish to enroll in and graduate with the BSIHS

PROFESSIONAL STUDIES

designed for students who wish to enroll in and graduate with the BSIHS while completing prereqs for admission into graduate/professional programs (i.e. med school, dental school, PT, etc.)

WHO SHOULD CONSIDER THIS DEGREE?

- Students interested in UTRGV degrees in Nursing, Clinical Lab Sciences, Communication Sciences and Disorders, Nutritional Sciences, or Social Work.
- Students interested in applying to graduate and professional programs including Medicine, Dentistry, Physical Therapy, etc.
- Students with earned semester credit hours in a health-related degree program who wish to earn a degree in a timely manner.

POTENTIAL CAREER PATHS:

- Health-related graduate and professional programs
- Hospitals
- Pharmaceutical Companies
- Community Health Agencies
- Business, Government, or Educational Organizations
- Public Health Departments
- Nursing Homes or Retirement Residences
- Home Health Agencies
- Wellness/Fitness Centers
- Medical Group Practices
- Insurance Companies
- Alcohol/Drug Treatment Programs